

RATIO

Ratio appears four times a year and aims to publish work of high quality on a wide range of philosophical topics. It encourages articles which meet the highest standards of philosophical expertise, while at the same time remaining accessible to readers from a broad range of philosophical disciplines.

Notes for Contributors

The preferred length for articles in RATIO is between 5000 and 6000 words. Articles are accepted for the refereeing process on the strict understanding that they are not under consideration elsewhere. All articles submitted must be preceded by an abstract (maximum 200 words), and should be sent to the Editor:

Professor John Cottingham
Department of Philosophy
The University of Reading,
READING RG6 6AA, England.

Typescripts (two copies), which will not be returned, should be double spaced. To facilitate anonymous refereeing, the author's name and address should appear on a detachable title page, but nowhere else in the article. Authors of papers accepted for publication will be asked to prepare a final version (hard copy plus disk) following house style guidelines. Books for review and all other editorial correspondence should be sent direct to the Editor at the above address.
