ARTICLES

SAMMY SMOOHA  Types of democracy and modes of conflict management in ethnically divided societies 423

PIERRE L. VAN DEN BERGHE  Multicultural democracy: can it work? 433

JOHN McGARRY  ‘Democracy’ in Northern Ireland: experiments in self-rule from the Protestant Ascendancy to the Good Friday Agreement 451

SAMMY SMOOHA  The model of ethnic democracy: Israel as a Jewish and democratic state 475

VELLO PETTAI and KLARA HALLIK  Understanding processes of ethnic control: segmentation, dependency and co-optation in post-communist Estonia 505

MICHAEL FLEMING  The new minority rights regime in Poland: the experience of the German, Belarussian and Jewish minorities since 1989 531

MUSTAFA SAATCI  Nation-states and ethnic boundaries: modern Turkish identity and Turkish–Kurdish conflict 549

BOOK REVIEWS 565
BOOKS RECEIVED 599
INDEX 601
THE ASSOCIATION FOR THE STUDY OF ETHNICITY AND NATIONALISM

President: Professor Lord Desai

Vice-Presidents: Professor Fred Halliday, Professor James Mayall, Professor Anthony D. Smith

Executive Committee

Chairs: Jonathan Githens-Mazer and Chiho Shiiyama

Treasurer: Emma Haddad

Secretary: Elliott Green

N&N Editor-in-Chief: Professor Anthony D. Smith

Sub-Committee Chairs: Mansoor Mirza, Richard Mole, Diego Muro-Ruiz

Advisory Council

Chair: Professor Jack Spence

Members

The ASEN Executive Committee

Erica Benner
Wendy Bracewell
John Breuilly
Bruce Cauthen
Frank Dikötter
Sebastian Garman
Montserrat Guibernau

Jim Hughes
John Hutchinson
Atsuko Ichijo
Jennifer Jackson-Preece
Athena Leoussi
Dominic Lieven
Josep Llobera
James Mills

Brendan O’Duffy
Brendan O’Leary
John Rex
Paul Rich
Gwendolyn Sasse
George Schöpflin
Oliver Zimmer

The Association for the Study of Ethnicity and Nationalism (ASEN) was founded by research students and academics in 1990 at the London School of Economics and Political Science where the headquarters of the Association are based.

ASEN is composed of academics, researchers, students, journalists and others directly concerned with advancing the study of ethnicity and nationalism. Its membership is international and multidisciplinary.

The aims of ASEN are:

- to establish, through its membership, an international and multidisciplinary network of scholars interested in ethnicity and nationalism;
- to stimulate debate on ethnicity and nationalism through the organisation of seminars, workshops, lectures and conferences;
- to collect and diffuse information on scholarly activities concerning ethnicity and nationalism and short articles through Studies in Ethnicity and Nationalism;
- to publish research on ethnicity and nationalism in its journal Nations and Nationalism.

MEMBERSHIP. Membership of ASEN includes the following: Studies in Ethnicity and Nationalism (a biannual journal and extended newsletter), Nations and Nationalism (a fully refereed academic journal published four times a year by Blackwell Publishers), invitations to the ASEN seminars and conferences, and a discounted fee for the ASEN annual conference.

Membership fees in 2002 are: £36 (US$70) for individual members; £20 (US$35) for student members; and £120 (US$240) for institutions including a subscription to Nations and Nationalism and £47 (US$94) for institutions excluding Nations and Nationalism.

In order to join ASEN, or for further details, write to: ASEN, European Institute, The London School of Economics and Political Science, Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE, UK. http://www.lse.ac.uk/depts/european/asen
Contributors

MICHAEL FLEMING successfully defended D.Phil thesis entitled ‘National minorities in post-communist Poland: Constructing identity’ in December 2001, and is currently teaching geography at Jesus College and Pembroke College, Oxford.

KLARA HALLIK is senior researcher at the Institute for International and Social Studies, Tallinn and associate professor of sociology at Tallinn Pedagogical University. She has published numerous articles on ethnic relations and ethnic policy in Estonia.

VELLO PETTAI is a lecturer in political science at the University of Tartu. He is completing his Ph.D. dissertation at Columbia University on ethno-political framing and mobilisation in Estonia. He has previously published in Nationalities Papers, East European Politics and Societies, Post-Soviet Affairs and Journal of Democracy.

JOHN McGARRY is professor of political science at the Queen’s University, Canada. He specialises in the politics of ethnic and national conflict regulation, and in the politics of Northern Ireland. His most recent book, coauthored with Brendan O’Leary, is Policing Northern Ireland: Proposal for a New Start (1999). He has coauthored, coedited and edited seven other books, and has published articles in a variety of journals, including Political Studies, Parliamentary Affairs, Ethnic and Racial Politics and Nationalism and Ethnic Politics. He is currently working with Brendan O’Leary on a book on ethnic and national conflict regulation.

MUSTAFA SAATCI is a member of the faculty in the Department of Sociology at Grand Valley State University, Allendale, Michigan. He is currently involved in a project studying Turkish migration to the United States.

SAMMY SMOOHA is professor of sociology at the University of Haifa. A specialist in comparative ethnic relations, he has published widely on the internal divisions in Israel. He has published several articles comparing Israel with Northern Ireland and is currently working on a comparative study of Israel, Slovakia and Estonia. His books include Israel: Pluralism and Conflict (1978) and Arabs and Jews in Israel, vols I and II (1989 and 1992).
PIERRE L. VAN DEN BERGHE is professor emeritus of sociology and anthropology at the University of Washington, Seattle. His many books on ethnic and racial conflict include South Africa: a Study in Conflict, Race and Racism, Inequality in the Peruvian Andes and The Ethnic Phenomenon. He is noted for his attempt to reconcile the ‘primordial’ and the ‘instrumentalist’ or ‘social constructionist’ approaches to the field.