The Singapore Journal of Tropical Geography is an international, multidisciplinary journal jointly published three times a year in by the Department of Geography, National University of Singapore, and Blackwell Publishing Limited. The SITG provides a forum for discussion of problems and issues in the tropical world; it includes theoretical and empirical articles that deal with the physical and human environments and developmental issues from geographical and interrelated disciplinary viewpoints. We welcome contributions from geographers as well as scholars from the humanities, social sciences and environmental sciences with an interest in tropical research.
