

Applications are invited for the position of Editor of the

Journal of Human Nutrition and Dietetics

The Journal of Human Nutrition and Dietetics (JHND) is an international peer-reviewed journal publishing papers in applied nutrition and dietetics. JHND is the flagship journal of The British Dietetic Association and represents the main vehicle to disseminate advances in the science and practice of dietetics both in the UK and internationally.

The successful candidate will be based in the UK and have extensive experience in research and publishing in academic journals. The main functions within this role are: Strategic Management, Editorial Team Management, Manuscript Management and Journal Promotion. The post involves working closely with the editorial board, associate editors and the publisher.

The ideal person must possess the following skills:

- ❖ PhD OR 10 years research experience with good track record of academic publications
- ❖ Excellent written and verbal communication
- ❖ Sound scientific judgement
- ❖ Leadership qualities
- ❖ Excellent knowledge of research frontiers in dietetics
- ❖ Ability to work to tight deadlines
- ❖ Commercial awareness (marketing and advertising)
- ❖ Experience of using web based submission procedures

The ideal candidate will be recognised internationally for his or her academic publications, and have an impressive track record of academic output. Applicants should note that this position requires a number of hours work each week with the possibility of additional days required for meetings and conferences. In light of this an honorarium is awarded and editorial administrative support provided.

The current editor is intending to step down by the end of 2012, so following a handover period, the new editor would be in place by the end of 2012.

Applications should include a curriculum vitae and a covering letter, setting out your vision for the Journal and how you would like to see it develop in the future. Your assessment of the current position of the Journal and its strengths and weaknesses would also be helpful.
