Statement from the Editors

We are committed to the Journal's smooth transition to online manuscript submission and review and would like to encourage any feedback on this guide to be sent to the Editors at the Nottingham address.

Online submission to Sociology of Health & Illness with Manuscript Central™

Manuscript Central™ is the Web-based manuscript submission and review system used by Sociology of Health & Illness. Submission online is an intuitive, step-by-step process. Reviews are also made online. This will be the preferred mode of manuscript submission and review to the Journal from 1st January 2003.

Full instructions and a help facility are provided at the Sociology of Health & Illness Manuscript Central™ site:

<http://shi.manuscriptcentral.com>

Authors should consult the Journal homepage for the Journal's specific requirements:

<http://www.blackwellpublishers.co.uk/journals/shil/submit>

Please see overleaf for further instructions

Manuscript Preparation

No particular manuscript preparation is necessary. However, we strongly recommend that, where possible, you combine your files (text, tables and figures) into a single manuscript. This will make it easier for Editors and reviewers to download and view/print your manuscript.

Please upload both an anonymous version suitable for referees, and a full version for the Editors.

File Types

All file types can be uploaded but not all users will have access to all software. We recommend that you upload text as Microsoft Word or RTF, PostScript (these three formats will be automatically converted to PDF) and figures as JPEG, GIF, TIFF and EPS.

Requirements

You need an Internet connection, a Web browser (Internet Explorer or Netscape version 4 or higher, avoid version 6), Adobe Acrobat (version 5 recommended) and an e-mail address for correspondence.

Manuscript Submission

By submitting online, you will benefit from quicker peer-review, Web-based manuscript tracking, online reviewing and faster response.

You will need your manuscript and figures in a digital format, plus a user ID and password for the site. Go to the journal's Manuscript Central homepage and Check for existing account if you have submitted to or reviewed for the Journal before, or have forgotten your details. If you are new to the Journal Create a new account.

Follow the steps opposite to submit your manuscript.

☞ Log on to <http://shi.manuscriptcentral.com> with your user ID and password. Click Author Centre and then Submit First Draft of a New Manuscript.

☞ Choose manuscript type from the drop-down list. Click Save and Continue to proceed.

☞ Input affiliations – a single affiliation can be used for several authors, so you only need to enter each institution once.

☞ Input all authors – enter the names of all contributing authors, choosing up to three affiliations for each. Only the corresponding author's e-mail address is needed.

☞ Input Title, Abstract and Keywords – copy and paste these from your document, or type into the box. Use the Character Palette to add Greek and other symbols. You will also have the opportunity to input comments to the Editorial Assignment Centre at this stage.

☞ Upload files using the File Manager. Use the Browse button to select a file. Choose a designation from the list and whether it will be seen by referees. Click Upload to add your file. Repeat until all files are uploaded.

☞ View 'proof' You must check the 'proofs' before submission. This will show you what Editors and referees will see. You can go back and replace incorrect files.

☞ Submit – once you are satisfied. An automatic confirmation with your manuscript number will follow. The progress of your submission can be tracked from your Author Centre.

Submit your revisions online

Log onto your Author Centre and locate the manuscript to be revised. Click View comments/respond to reply to reviewers and then click the manuscript title to submit your revised files.
