

JOURNAL OF MANAGEMENT STUDIES

New General Editor for Journal of Management Studies

The Journal of Management Studies is seeking a General Editor to join the editorial team of Joep Cornelissen, Steven W Floyd, Andrew Corbett, Andrew Delios and Colin Hales. The successful candidate will replace Mike Wright who has completed his term of office. The term of office is three years, from January 1st 2009 in the first instance, with an option for a further three. The post carries a generous honorarium and all necessary travel expenses will be covered.

The journal was established in 1963 as one of the first general management journals outside the United States. It publishes innovative, novel and high-quality papers that advance theoretical and empirical knowledge in the area of management and is one of the leading management journals in the world.

Specific qualities sought from candidates include the following:

- Significant scholarly contributions in any area of management studies. Currently it would be helpful if this included one or more of the following areas of expertise - organization behaviour, strategic management, human resource management and entrepreneurship. It is expected that applicants will identify a specific category as a primary area of expertise. Editors must be prepared, however, to handle manuscripts across a wide range topics and domains.
- Extensive experience as a reviewer for management journals
- Demonstrated administrative skills, capacity to handle a demanding workload and to meet deadlines.
- Must also be able to work constructively with authors, reviewers and the editorial team.

Interviews will be held in October/November 2008.

To discuss, informally, the nature of the editorial task and the support that the Society gives to editors in recognition of the time they devote to the Journal, please contact Jo Brudenell, Editorial Manager, Journal of Management Studies, Durham Business School, Durham, DH1 3LB.
