Announcing a major new journal dedicated to cross professional learning - Learning in Health and Social Care - Issue 1 available for FREE!

We are delighted to launch the first issue of a new international journal, Learning in Health and Social Care. This ground-breaking Journal addresses the growth and development of knowledge about approaches to the facilitation of individual, team and organisational learning in a variety of health professional environments. It will be of interest to all within health and social care including those interested in developing collaborative working and multiprofessional approaches to service delivery.

The first issue of the journal is available free online at <http://www.blackwell-synergy.com/rd.asp?code=LHS&goto=journal> Please forward this to the relevant departments in your institution so that they can take a look. The journal is accepting original articles that reflect collaborative working between and within professions as well as research studies situated in one or more professions that raise issues relevant to several professions.

Now researchers in this growing area have a natural outlet for publishing their work. Learning in Health and Social Care is published in both paper and online, and is not part of the 2002 consortia collection. If you would like further information, or to take out a subscription to the journal, please contact Sharon.Kershaw@blacksci.co.uk

These journals will be added to Blackwell Synergy in 2003, and will also continue to be available through ingenta/Catchword. 2003 prices for all Futura journals will be circulated in August, together with pricing for all Blackwell Publishing journals.

COUNTER Website Now Live!

The COUNTER website is now live at <http://www.projectCounter.org>

COUNTER (Counting Online Usage of NeTworked Electronic Resources) is a new, multi-agency project whose objective is to develop a single, internationally accepted Code of Practice that will allow the usage of online information products and services to be measured more effectively. This will make it possible to compare usage across journals and databases from different publishers.

The COUNTER website provides a source of up-to-date information on the project, as well as a list of Founding Sponsors and Steering Group members. COUNTER is actively supported by the international community of librarians and publishers, and by their professional organisations, including:

AAP, Association of American Publishers
ALPSP, The Association of Learned and Professional Society Publishers
ARL, Association of Research Libraries
ASA, Association of Subscription Agents and Intermediaries
BIC/EDItEUR
JISC, Joint Information Systems Committee
NCLIS, National Commission on Libraries and Information Science

NISO, National Information Standards Organization
PA, The Publishers Association
STM, International Association of Scientific, Technical & Medical Publishers
UKSG, United Kingdom Serials Group

The development of COUNTER is being supervised by a Steering Group chaired by Richard Gedye of OUP. The Project Director, responsible for day-to-day management is Peter Shepherd who should be contacted for further information at pshepherd@projectCounter.org

Journal transferring from Blackwell to Lippincott

We would like to announce that the Journal of Lower Genital Tract Disease is leaving Blackwell Publishing following the publication of the first issue of 2002 in May. It will be transferring to Lippincott Williams & Wilkins who will publish the remainder of the year's issues. For further information about this title, please contact their Customer Service department, or email Kerry O'Rourke at korourke@LWW.com
