End of Grace Period for 2002 Subscriptions

The three month grace period for online access to Blackwell Publishing journals expired on March 31st 2003. If you have not yet renewed or upgraded your subscription for 2003, then please contact your subscription agent as soon as possible.

If you have renewed your subscription but have not yet received activation instructions for Blackwell Synergy, then please send an email request to onlinehelp@blackwellpublishing.com and let them know your Institution's name, Administrator's name and email, and your subscription number.

Blackwell Synergy – The first site to become COUNTER Compliant!

We are delighted to announce that Blackwell Synergy usage data is now COUNTER compliant, and is the first website to be approved by Project COUNTER (<http://www.projectcounter.org>).

Being COUNTER compliant means that the method of measuring and reporting usage statistics meets the standards set by the COUNTER Code of Practice, devised by librarians, publishers, and vendors. This includes definitions of the data elements to be measured, and usage report content, format, frequency and method of delivery.

There are two levels of COUNTER compliancy. Level 1 compliancy becomes the industry's minimum standard from January 2004, and Level 2 is the recommended standard. Blackwell Synergy is now Level 1 compliant, and will be Level 2 compliant in January 2004, although the reports for Level 2 have already been implemented.

What this Means for You

- The Usage Reports from Blackwell Synergy have changed to meet the requirements of the COUNTER Code of Practice.
- There are now three separate usage reports in the Library Administration area of Synergy. Examples of these are shown below.

- The usage data from Blackwell Synergy will be directly comparable only with usage data from other COUNTER compliant sources.

NEW – Athens Login now available on Blackwell Synergy

Users can now use their Athens Username and Password to login to Blackwell Synergy. This has been a major requirement of our UK library and hospital customers and we are pleased to now be able to deliver it.

We have set up all of our Synergy customers with the Athens identity prefix, and the Athens organization will enable those using Athens to gain remote access to their subscribed to journals on Synergy. Most of our library customers will be familiar with the use of Athens, but if any help is needed then please contact Athens directly at helpdesk@athensams.net

Each email request should include the following information:

- the name of the service for which access should be granted, ie. Blackwell Synergy
- the customer's organisational name
- the customer's Athens site code

In addition, Single Sign On has been implemented, so Librarians wishing to move to the Athens Devolved Authentication model can now include Blackwell Synergy as one of the Data Service Providers.

NEW – Reference Manager now available

Journal users can now download the citations from Blackwell Synergy directly into their reference manager using the 'Download to Reference Manager' link on the site. This appears on the Table of Contents, abstracts, and full-text HTML pages of the site.

Please pass this information on to your library users.

Update on Social Science and Humanities Journals in Blackwell Synergy

We are pleased to announce that almost all our social science and humanities journals have now been loaded onto Blackwell Synergy. Below is a complete list of these titles now available on Synergy and those which will be put on the site as soon as the first 2003 is published. We have also included a list here of the journals not going onto Blackwell Synergy in 2003. You may continue to access these titles through the usual third party services.

We are working hard to ensure that the same level of back content is available on Blackwell Synergy as currently available on ingenta and other services. This project should be complete by the Summer.

Please update your library online catalogues so that it includes direct links to Blackwell's online journals on Synergy. This is the best way to access our journals, for you and for your users. The instructions are included in this newsletter.

Your users get access to the optimum version of the content.

- Many journals have reference links to ISI, CrossRef and Medline (all articles will have this facility by the end of 2004)
- Direct links to back volumes on JSTOR
- Full-text searching with highlighted search results

Synergy offers an easy to use service to library administrators.

- Athens authentication of users, plus IP and remote username and password

- COUNTER-compliant usage data, updated daily
- SFX-compatible holdings file
- OpenURL linking supported
- Self-administration of IP ranges
